ENCOURAGE COMMUNICATION

SEND MENTORING

OUR MISSION

To facilitate and promote welcoming yet beneficial learning standards for young people from all backgrounds.

We aim to prepare individuals to attain their full potential by encouraging a healthy learning foundation for them to grow.

OUR SERVICES

Specialist 1:1 mentoring for young people who are diagnosed with autism, ADHD, SEMH and SEND. We work with young people from the ages of 4 to 25 who require daily and or extra-curricular academic support.

FULLY QUALIFIED EXPERTISE

We have a fully qualified team of experts dedicated to identifying the specific needs of every young person we work with.

This approach enables us to create bespoke programmes suitable to meeting the needs of young people.

OUR ETHOS

The aim of the Encourage Communication programme is to provide authentic meaningful long-term support to young people with SEND.

Our core values are outlined in our ethos:

Relate – to create sincere connections with young people through empathy, understanding and building rapport.

Restore – to re-establish the hopes, dreams and aspirations of young people.

Renew – rebuild and encourage confidence and capabilities.

THE REFERRAL PROCESS

The Encourage Communication programme endeavours to create a bespoke mentoring programme for each pupil enrolled.

In creating each programme we consider:

1. Our ethos as an organisation.

Our ethos is the cornerstone of our approach when working with young people and serves as a prerequisite benchmark to any of our services.

2. The young person's areas for development as highlighted by their EHC plan.

We consider the needs and objectives set out in EHC plans as the foundation when setting ideal outcomes.

3. Views/goals set by the SENCO

We consult the SENCO to ascertain if there are any additional considerations to be taken into account.

4. Perspectives of subject teachers and parents

We aim to understand the perspectives of both subject teachers and parents, this allows us to gain an all-encompassing view of the young person.

OUR APPROACH

RELATE - RESTORE - RENEW

Relate

- The Encourage Communication programme's introductory stage is called relate.
- The relate stage is made up of nine core topics that allow our mentors to build rapport and gain an insight into the interests, mindset and views of the student.
- The relate stage topics include sessions focusing on behaviour and attainment, learning experiences, self regulation, confidence and aiming high, managing relationships, life at home, friendships & self respect and the online world.

Restore

- The restore stage is dedicated to building on the positive relationship that has been established with the student from the relate stage.
- The structure of the restore stage varies depending on the feedback provided by the mentor from the relate stage.
- The mentor will consult with the SENCO, students teachers and parents to set any additional goals or desired outcomes.
- The mentor will provide progress reports throughout the relate, restore and renew stages of the programme, typically provided at the end of each term.

Renew

- The renew stage continues to further the progress made in the relate and restore phases.
- Parents, subject teachers and the SENCO are updated with progress reports from the previous phases and are consulted in the development of any new long-term goals set for the young person.
- We will compare and contrast the students overall behaviour, attainment and targets over the course of the enrolment period to measure progress.
